Storytelling Across Generations

Name: _____

Today we will learn how stories help us remember special moments, people, and places. Everyone has stories to tell about family, friends, or fun things that have happened. Let's listen, draw, and share our own stories!

Listening to Stories

Think about a story you've heard before. It might be from your family, a book, or a teacher. Who told the story? What was it about?

My Story

Now it's your turn! Draw or write about a story from your own life. It could be something happy, funny, or special to you.

STUDENT WORKSHEET

Sharing Our Stories

When we tell stories, we help others learn about who we are and where we come from. Who would you like to share your story with? Why is your story special to you?

My Favorite Story Moment

Draw or write your favorite part of the story you shared or heard today.

Family Connection

Ask someone at home to tell you a story from when they were your age. It could be about school, friends, or something funny that happened! Next time you come to class, share what you learned from their story.
